To the Electors of Allegheny county.

AS I have been placed before the public as a candidate for the office of SHERIFF at our next election, with my full approbation, and as hints have been given in some parts of the county that I had given up the idea of standing a poll, I consider it a duty I owe myself to state thus publicly, that I have not declined. The duties of a very confining business have prevented me from making that personal declaration to my fellow citizens, which has become usual on these occasions, yet I trust, that as my whole life has been passed in this county, sufficient information as to my qualifications or unfitness for the office, may be easily acquired by any individual who may think fit to make the enquiry. If the citizens of Allegheny shall think proper to favor me with their voice on the day of election, I shall feel highly gratified, for more reasons than one; if another of the candidates be preferred to me, I shall acquiesce without a murmur, convinced that every member of our society ought to exercise independenly, the full right of suffrage.

Your humble serv't.

MORGAN NEVILLE.

Pittsburgh, July 6.

To the Electors of Allegheny County;

Friends and Fellow Citizens.—

FOR the first time in my life I appear before you as a candidate for office, should you deem me capable and worthy of your confidence I solicit your suffrages at the ensuing election for the office of SHERIFF, for Allegheny county; pledging myself, should I be elected, to discharge the duties of the office with impartiality.

WM. B. FOSTER.

Pitt township, August 13.

To the Electors of Allegheny County;

FELLOW CITIZENS—As I have been placed before the public as a candidate for the office of SHERIFF at our next election, with my full approbation, I now state publicly that I have determined to stand the poll, and do hereby solicit your votes. The necessary attention to my business through these times of difficulty, has hitherto prevented me from making that personal declaration to you, which has become so usual on such occasions; yet I trust that as my whole life has been passed in this county, and as I once had the honor of serving you in the Sheriff's Office, sufficient information as to my qualifications may be easily acquired. If the citizens of Allegheny county should favor me with their voice on the day of election, I shall remember with gratitude this mark of public confidence.

WM. M'CANDLESS.

July 16.

To the Electors of Allegheny County;

FELLOW CITIZENS—My name has appeared amongst a number of others in the public prints of this place, as a candidate for the office of SHERIFF, at the next election, and as I have been well assured that when I was spoken of at a political meeting lately held, it was publicly stated that I had declined standing a poll for that office, I think it right to mention that as I did not offer myself at first, neither did I ever say or hint to any person that I intended to decline. The compliment of having been mentioned by my fellow citizens in that way, is too flattering to be lightly treated—But as it is the privilege of every citizen to exercise his own judgement on the day of election, I should think solicitation would be rather offensive than pleasing, and will therefore only observe, that I feel grateful for being put in nomination, and shall be highly so if successful.

I am yours very respectfully,

JAMES B. OLIVER.

Pittsburgh, July 23.

To the Electors of Allegheny County;

Fellow Citizens,

NOTWITHSTANDING the repeated assertions of some that I had declined standing a pole altogether; and of others that I had suffered my name to be mentioned merely for the purpose of promoting the election of a favorite candidate; I now candidly and honestly assure you that I mean to be one of the disinterested twelve who have solicited your votes. In short it would be no small gratification to me to be your next sheriff. I, in the mean time, fully convinced that you will exercise your judgement on the occasion, remain whether successful or unsuccessful

Your Fellow Citizen,

WILLIAM LECKY.

No. VIII.

Some are wise——

To me the why and wherefore well are known;
And, sir, to speak the truth, I freely own
In confidence, I had it from a third,
And promis'd, doubtless, not to say a word,
But—give me, sir, your hand, the secret is your own.

TO render those who might be disposed to repine at the inequality which seems to exist in the conditions of mankind, more contented with their own lot, is almost as great a task as any that was ever undertaken by the redoubtable Alcides. The cleansing of the Augean stables, and the destruction of the Lernaen hydra, were nothing in comparison with the attempt to expel from the mind that monster discontent. For the assistance, however, of those who are inclined to engage in the enterprize, there are numerous auxiliary light troops, who, if unable to make any sudden impression on the enemy, by a bold and vigorous attack, are always ready to hang upon his rear or flanks, and take every advantage which his remissness may afford, for his destruction. But, to speak in a less figurative and bobadil style, there are many, who, in the midst of the privations which they suffer, and the uneasiness, created by their reflections on the comparative misery of their situation, derive no inconsiderable gratification from the possession, which they may chance to enjoy, of some valuable and important secret.

It might afford a subject of curious speculation to examine the causes to which the pleasure of being the conscious repository of some fact, not known to others, is ascribable. The source of this feeling, notwithstanding the knowledge which has been obtained of the human character, and the principles of human action, appears to be yet but partially known. Let any one who is under its influence ask himself, why he is subjected to it, or why he is conscious of such delightful sensations, while he fancies that he is the possessor of the most insignificant piece of intelligence, but little known, because not worth enquiring after; and, however simple the interrogatory may appear, he will find that to obtain a true and satisfactory answer to it, is a matter of some difficulty. Probably he might seek with a hope of success, for a solution of his self-propounded query, in the momentary importance which he feels, because he thinks himself wiser than his neighbours, or in that which they are willing to award him, because he is able to gratify the disposition which, like the busy Athenians, they possess, to enquire after the news, and pry into the concerns of others, while they neglect their own.

Intrust a village gossip with a tale "signifying nothing," and her self-consequence immediately receives a very sensible accession, which it retains until the source where it was derived, is itself exhausted: until this happens, according to the nature of the story with which she is fraught, her countenance, or is brightened by the sunshine of childish delight. She was, we may suppose, intrusted with the interesting secret, on condition of keeping it inviolable: but, for fear it should be spoiled by keeping, or discovered and revealed by others, before she could communicate it, she immediately conveys it to her very particular friends, with an injunction of the strictest silence; and in a short time it is retailed at every tea table and pot house in the vicinage. Well, what harm does it do? Are we to deprive the sex of an innocent amusement by prohibiting, a contraband, the commodity of secrets? no means; but I would lay a very y duty on it, so that none might be manufactured at home, or imported broad, but such as are at least of a hai[illegible]s nature.

"—— like to title leaf,
"Foretells the nature of a tragic volume,"

Like the fabled vampyre, which furnishes poets and romance writers with so fine a theme for the exercise of fancy, a secret has exhausted, (if the phraseology be allowed,) the vital fluid of many a spotlesscharacter. Concealed beneath the dark disguise of pretended friendship it sallies forth, bent on destruction, and prowls about amongst the abodes of innocence and peace, until it discovers some incautious, unresisting victim on whom it can fix its ruthless fangs. A girl can boast of a little more beauty than ordinary: or from her suavity of manners, amiable temper, or numerous accomplishments, attracts those attentions from the other sex which her less fortunate female companions think should be more equally bestowed. To destroy at once, the influence of the gem, and bring her down to a level with their own ideas of her merits, a secret not the most favourable to her claims on such general admiration, is with all due haste, conveyed to her admirers. It is not always audibly expressed; but is often disclosed by a look, a nod, a smile, a gesture, or some other of those innumerable means which envy, jealousy and ill nature are so capable of exerting. If despatched on the zephyr of a whisper, it reaches the ear in such soft yet thrilling sounds, as to produce on the hearer an effect as instantaneous and wonderful as was erst produced by Orpheus on the rocks and forests. Its object defenceless, because unsuspicious, is compelled to remain in ignorance, while her character is aspersed: and to see herself shunned by those who once professed for her the most permanent attachment.

This terrible, because concealed enemy, visits at certain seasons the clubs of politicians who assemble around a social glass, to discuss the interests of the state and the merits of candidates for public office. Many a virtuous man who has consented to submit to the ordeal of political investigation by becoming a candidate for political favour, has this perfidious foe to social comfort and happiness consigned to infamy, or stretched upon the rack of demagogue inquisition. No sooner does it begin to exert its influence by giving to the sovereign people some intelligence, which on the eve of an election is of most importance, than it sets in motion all the pens and presses that can be put in requisition. If these are insufficient to effect its purpose, the tongues of its very complaisant possessors, being more numerous and more easily put in operation, are at its service.

But the tea-table is the noted scene in which its astonishing effects are most visible. The inspiring beverage, from which it seems to rise like the pestiferous vapour exhaled from the Clepsic Acheron, operates like enchantment on the coterie who partake of it. Under the influence of the furor coquendi which it creates, they doom to the horrors of the wordy storm, the devoted heads of those who are unable to find security from its pitiless peltings, beneath the shelter of insignificance or of stoical philosophy. Or if they and their characters are so fortunate as to escape unhurt from the fury of one element, they are in imminent danger of being boiled alive or drowned in another. A company of garrulous, scandal-talking old women seated round a tea-table, bear a very striking resemblance to the witches in Macbeth placed about their boiling cauldrons, celebrating their secret orgies and repeating some cabalistic words on which the fate of many a poor mortal depends. The comparison might be carried farther by putting into the mouth of some casual visitor the address of the Scottish usurper—

"How now! ye secret dark and midnight hags,
"What is't ye do? K.

AT a large and respectable meeting of the citizens of Pittsburgh, convened at the house of J. B. Oliver, on Saturday the 24th of July, 1819, for the purpose of forming a Ticket for the approaching Election, on liberal and impartial principles, JOHN DARRAGH, Esq. was called to the Chair, and JAMES M. RIDDLE, appointed Secretary.

Resolved, That this meeting, aware of the delicacy and responsibility of the measure, but knowing that nominations must commence somewhere, take the liberty of recommending the following Ticket for the next Election, to the consideration of their fellow citizens; at the same time they suggest the propriety of the inhabitants of the villages and townships of the county to meet together and put in nomination the names of fit persons to fill any office, in order that the electors may have the greater choice.

JUST SENTIMENTS.

The Virginia Enquirer furnishes us with the following Extract from a Discourse of Bishop Moore, at Richmond. The sentiments it contains are at once correct and seasonable:—

"The value which we attach to wealth and the pleasure we promise ourselves in the possession of riches is deceptive and vain. The humble cottager who rises in the morning to his labours, and obtains by that labour his daily bread, partakes of more genuine felicity than the individual who rolls in splendour and fares sumptuously every day; his constitution, provdied his conduct is marked by features of sobriety, is more robust; his cheek is gladdened with the blush of health; a smile of contentment is seen in his countenance; his appetite is rendered keen by employment, and having no cares to distract his mind, he commits his head to his pillow in peace, and awakes refreshed by his tranquil slumbers. The expectant of no fortune cannot be disappointed in his views; he labours for support alone: he cultivates his fields with industry, and looks to heaven for the former and latter rain to mature his crops. His wife and children are happy in the enjoyment he possesses; the voice of health is in his dwelling; his communion with his Maker is not distracted by the cares of life; religion holds up to his enraptured view her choicest consolations; he looks forward without a fear to that moment when his labours will cease, and the trumphs of heaven be his portion forever.

"Compare the situation of such an individual, my beloved hearers, with the situation of the man, involved in the hurry and bustle of the world. Consider those thousand contingencies upon which his success in business must depend. Not all the efforts which the most prudent can make, to secure his concerns from derangement, will always prove effectual. When his affairs at home wear a pleasing prospect, his disappointments from abroad throw him into confusion and defeat his plans. He sees a storm of adverse fortune approaching, which chills him to the heart; he perceives that no wisdom he possesses, can secure him from the blow—the wife of his bosom he is sensible will feel the shock; his beloved children, checked in their expectations, tremble under the influence of a father's sorrow; he goes to his pillow for rest, but that pillow, once the seat of quietude, refuses him the aid he seeks; his mind is distracted with the heavy burdens of his cares, and he rises in the morning with a countenance indicative of sorrow and woe.

"Such being the distress, in which the pursuit of wealth so frequently plunges us, distress which at the present moment is felt by so many, whom I love & respect; by so many to whom I feel attached by a thousand tender consideration, let me entreat you, beloved parishioners, to remember, in the temporal prospects, your happiness is not so essentially interested as upon a superficial view of things you may imagine. Happiness, rely upon it, is not dependent upon wealth. Contentment of mind rests upon no such uncertain foundation. If peace and comfort flow from no other source than riches, your preacher must always have been miserable, for wealth he never had, and wealth, from his situation in life, he never can obtain. Let me, therefore, entreat you to be submissive to the reverse of fortune, with which many of you have to struggle; the calamity, if it deserves the name is universal; Europe, as well as the land in which we live, groans beneath the burden.

"A mediocrity of fortune is within the reach of every sober minded, industrious man.—Plenty to satisfy our necessary wants will never be denied us, having food and raiment, let us be content; a man wants but "little here below, nor wants that little long." The prospects of our crops is abundant; the Almighty, with the finger of mercy, points to his inexhaustible stores, and invites us to partake of the bounties of his providence. Luxuries can be dispensed with, and we shall find an increase of happiness growing out of such a dispensation. The ceremony and unnecessary parade of life, do not contribute to real enjoyment; it is the bane of social intercourse; it strips society of its delights, and substitues an empty void for solid comfort. Think me not a novice! my observation and experience proclaim to me the truth of my remarks. "Learn then of Christ, who was meek and lowly in heart," be tender and indulgent to each other; let economy be the order of the day; let us rise in all the majesty of union, and frown upon dissipation and extravagance; let us guard our expenses, and direct our outgoings into such channels, as God and reason, in this time of commercial distress, will approve. If those who have escaped the pressure of the times, will set the example, the effect will be such, as the purest moralist could wish; in a word, disappointed in your worldly arrangements, look to the Lord Jesus for comfort and you will find rest to your souls."

REVOLUTIONARY LETTER.

In looking over an old file of the Boston Gazette for the year 1774 a few days since, our attention was drawn to the subjoined curious paper, pointing out to the British troops some of the most conspicuous patriots of the Revolution, and urging their sacrifice as soon as hostilities should commence:—

The following is an authentic copy of a letter which was lately thrown into the camp, with the following direction:

"To the Officers and Soldiers of his Majesty's troops in Boston.

"It being more than probable that the king's standard will soon be erected, from rebellion breaking out in this province, it is proper that you, Soldiers! should be acquainted with the authors thereof, and of all the misfortunes brought upon the province—the following is a list of them, viz.

Samuel Adams,	John Hancock,
James Bowdoin,	Wm. Cooper,
Dr. Thomas Young,	Dr. Chauncey,
Dr. Benj. Church,	Dr. Cooper,
Capt. J. Bradford,	Thomas Cushing,
Josiah Quincy,	Jos. Greenleaf, and
Maj. Nathl. Barber,	Wm. Denning.
Wm. Mollineux,

"The friends of your king and country and of America, hope and expect it from you, soldiers, the instant rebellion happens, you will put the above persons immediately to the sword, destroy their houses, and plunder their effects, it is just that they should be the first victims to the mischief they have brought upon us.

(signed)
A friend to Great Britain and America."

"P. S.—Don't forget these trumpeters of sedition, the printers, Edes and Gill, and Thomas."

From the New-York Daily Advertiser.

MR. EDITOR.—There is no information communicated to the public through the medium of newspapers more valuable than that which saves the lives of their readers—a simple recipe, that can do no harm to an infant, may arrest the most destructive disorder. Such is the following, which ought to be published in every paper throughout the United States: especially at a season when so many children die of the summer complaint, and the choleramorbus sweeps off adults like a destroying sword:—Take a soft cork and burn it thoroughly in the fire, when it ceases to blaze, mix it up on a plate with a little milk and water, or any thing more agreeable to the palate, and repeat the dose till the disorder ceases; which it commonly does in the second or third administration of the remedy, the acidity of the stomach is immediately corrected, and the effect instantaneous. I have seen a person in the greatest agony of the bilious cholick effectually cured with a single draught of this carbonick preparation, within the power of every family, and ready at the shortest notice. I hope therefore that you will publish it for the benefit of the community.

MEDICUS.

The following curious circumstance, is said to have occurred at Plattsburgh, in the year 1813, when the disease, which made such havoc in the northern army, during the war, was most prevalent among the troops at that place.

The Surgeon one morning, on going his rounds through the Hospital, happened, by some error of judgement, arising probably from hurry and press of businsss, to pronounce one of his patients dead, who was in fact, only in a profound sleep. By what test the surgeon was led to this precipitate conclusion, we are not informed; but it is certain the man betrayed sufficient signs of life, and many are yet of opinion, that the mistake lies between Death and the Doctor. Jonathan having been a clever fellow, and consequently a favourite of the company, his comrades resolved to make some exertions to give him a Christian burial, which had been necessarily denied to most of those who died here at this time Accordingly having procured some boards from a neighbouring barn they formed a rude box as a substitute for a coffin, placed the body in it and with all due solemnity carried it in proceesion to the grave.—The scene now would soon have been closed, and Jonathan left to his dreams; but just as they were about to let down the body into the grave another of their comrades arrived in great haste, and begged them to delay the interment a few moments, as he had something very important to say. Then taking a conspicuous station he began to hold forth in terms appropriate to the occasion. He told them that death was certain, and life uncertain; which self-evident propositions, he demonstrated with many ingenious arguments.

Then from general remarks, he proceeded to call their attention to the peculiar subject of his speech, the deceased. Here all the merits which his friend had possessed, and many more, were called forth, and displayed in due order, and he concluded his eulogium, by hinting his intention of raising a monument to his memory. Thus he found matter sufficient to descant upon for some minutes: but the sequel will show that his speech was not merely a display of empty words. The orator having arrived at a proper climax, gradually let himself down again; and when he thought he had prepared the minds of his auditors, and removed from them any superstitious notions, that might stand in his way, he proceeded to lay before them a proposition which was the subject & end of his discourse. It seems that the blanket of the deceased was perfectly new and unsoiled, and the orator said it was a great pity so fine a piece of goods should be allowed to perish in the earth, when an old one would answer the purpose as well; that his own had seen much hard service, and was no longer fit for any other duty. So saying, he descended from his rostrum, and spread out his battered blanket, whose sable appearance amply confirmed his assertion, for the inspection of his comrades.

It happened that Jonathan having finished his nap, awoke just at the conclusion of the speech, and having removed the lid of his box, which for lack of nails, had not been fastened, he lay listening to the proceedings about him. "Now," said the speaker, "if the company have no objections, I will take Jonathan's blanket, for my use, and he may be buried in mine." "And if the company have no objections," said Jonathan rising up, "I'll be buried in my own blanket!"

☞ We must inform our new correspondent "CALEB COWHIDE," that certain objectionable passages in his last communication, prevents us from publishing it. We are great sticklers for the principle of treating the heads of our government with the highest respect, more particularly when such a man as Mr. Monroe is one of the most prominent; under correction, we do not conceive that this gentleman has at all merited the style which "Caleb" has used towards him. As to manufactures we have no reason to suppose that the President will not advocate them when properly brought before him. At all events we do not consider the language applicable to this worthy personage, who, if he had nothing else to recommend him to our affections, is always presented to our fancy in a character of all others the most fascinating, that of a soldier of the revolution. It is, to our minds, little short of sacrilege, to approach these "relics" with any feelings, but those of veneration. We shall always be happy to hear from our correspondent, reserving our editorial rights. We acknowledge ourselves frequently gratified by his productions.

We observed in our last, that we had no doubt of the ratification of the Spanish Treaty; reflection only strengthens our belief. There is however a possibility that one occurrence may take place, which may create some serious embarrassment in this affair; this occurrence is the interference of the lately invented, mighty engine, the Congress of Sovereigns. The opposition and exertions of Great Britain may so far intimidate the fanatic King of Spain as to induce him to throw himself upon the mediation of the Legitimates; how far or to what extent these would interpose it is impossible to say; this would entirely depend upon the opinion entertained of American policy, in Europe; we have strong doubts however as to Russia's displaying much sensibility where the mere interests of England are concerned; besides, if the continental powers are really alarmed at the influence of the American Republic, we conceive that in place of restraining the extension of our limits, they ought to encourage it, for it must be evident to every sound politician who has paid attention to the progress of the U. States that the first danger which will assail the Union will be from the great distance which will exist between the different extremes of the United States. Upon the rest of Europe as very problematical. Spain must ratify the treaty on many grounds. The Floridas are of no possible benefit; they only serve to divert her attention from her more vital concerns in Mexico and South-America; it would be to her interest to make a present of them, if by that means she could purchase our perfect neutrality. If a ratification does take place, no doubt it will be bottomed on this basis: we, on our part, will be bound to observe it with perfect good faith, however much we may wish for the complete emancipation of the Spanish colonies, it will be the duty of our government to stop this open enlistment of forces within our territory, to march against Mexico, and the open fitting out of privateers in Baltimore and elsewhere, for the avowed object of depredating on Spanish commerce.

COMMUNICATED.

Messrs. Scull & Neville,

GENTLEMEN—On Monday evening the 16th inst. and Wednesday the 18th, I witnessed the wonderful dramatic abilities of Miss M'Bride, who has been advertised as a child only 10 years of age, which we asserted as a palpable falsehood, until convinced by her appearance and infantile prattle with her mother a few moments after performance.

I have read a very eloquent criticism, by S. Woodsworth, esq. of New-York—He has said every thing, in this little charmer's praise, that can be expressed with language, but to me it appears that the most luminous description cannot convey even a faint idea of the astonishing powers and lively sensibilities this young lady seems to possess. When repeating her heroic poetry, her articulation is the best I ever heard; her emphasis laid with precision and accuracy; her walk and whole form becomes nobly dignified, and possesses those graces which would adorn a princess. She seems to be completely mistress of the various passions which are incidental to the human mind, her sudden bursts of rage from the mild and fascinating sentences of approbation: her immediate transition to contempt and ridicule, are admirably executed, and causes her auditors to gaze with amazement—her brilliant eye and expressive countenance, cause every beholder to forget that she is a child—she is void of that pompous absurdity which too often accompanies the studied actress, but seems to be solely under the guidance of nature. It is hoped that a liberal and enlightened public will not fail to reward real merit and natural genius.

We learn from Meadville, that the North Western Bank of Pennsylvania failed to resume specie payments, on Monday last; of course the charter is forfeited. It is said that notes to the amount of fifteen thousand dollars were presented for payment on Monday morning.—Erie Patriot.

BOSTON, Aug. 6.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in the County of Plymouth, dated Tuesday, 3d inst.

Yesterday in the afternoon we witnessed one of the most tremendous and awful thunder storms ever known in this part of the country. For at least thirty minutes there was one continued blaze and roar from the grand artillery of Heaven, attended with hail and rain in almost solid columns; and to add to the sublimity of the scene, and awful grandeur of the view, five barns, struck by the lightning, were in flames in sight from our house. After the storm, we heard the melancholy information of the death of Mr. Hatel, about twenty three years of age, killed by the lightning passing over his breast.

From the Norfolk Beacon, Aug. 9.

The British ship Higson, Johnson, 40 days from Cork, anchored in Hampton Roads yesterday. Capt. J. states that the markets were generally improving—that it was reported when he sailed, that the British government had remonstrated with Spain against the cession of the Floridas to the United States, offering to assist the Spaniards with troops in keeping possession of them; and that it was the impression that in the event of the Floridas being ceded to this country, Cuba would be immediately given up to Great Britain.

It is only 90 days since the Higson left the Capes of Virginia for Cork.

FROM THE AURORA.

The Richmond Enquirer enquires where Com. PERRY is going? We shall tell him—two vessels were fitted out in one of our ports by the Spanish Royal agents, while Don Onis was at Washington; they contained supplies for the Spanish general MORILLA, and information of the fact being communicated to Commodore BRION, the chief naval officer of the Republic of Venezuela, he intercepted those vessels, seized them, libelled and condemned as Spanish property, under false colours, in an admiralty court, constituted conformable with the law of nations—it is to demand those condemned vessels that COM. PERRY has been sent. MORE ANON as the saying is.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER, DATED NACOGDOCHES, June 24th.

On the 21st of this month Gen. Long arrived at Camp Freemen, twelve miles from the Sabine our present head quarters, and the same evening the Republican Colors of Texas were hoisted in the presence of a number of the citizens, who on seeing the flag raised, fired a salute—The standard being now raised, forces are flocking to it every day. The Royalists have heard of our embodying which has thrown them into great confusion—they have began to collect their forces in order to give us battle; but when collected it will require as many to remain at home to suppress the disaffected commotions of the inhabitants, as they will be able to march against us. I wish to let our friends know that it would be very flattering to see them coming to join us. We have arms ammunition, &c in abundance. We have also plenty of provisions of every description—and plenty of funds to replenish with.

This is to be our head quarters, and our provisions and camp equipage will be here in a few days."

Extract of a letter, dated Camp Freemen, June 28th, 1819.

"General Aradonda, commanding the Royalists is now moving towards us in full force—the Indians are annoying him on all sides, and have taken some prisoners from him and sent them to us—the people here, none more sanguine of success—recruits are joining us daily."

Another extract of the third of this month, states, "I am not yet attached to the army, but inform the commanding officer, that I am on daily duty in promoting the cause.—From my knowledge of the Indians and their language, there can be furnished, if necessary, 2000 warriors."

Extract of a letter from Gen. Long, the Chief of the army of Texas, dated Nacogdoches, July 12, 1819.

"I started to go to Natchez, but a rumor of the enemy advancing on us, compelled me to remain, or to lose the confidence of the men I command, and break up the expedition, which is now in the most prosperous condition, nothing will prevent our success—we increase daily in soldiers and citizens, they join us from all quarters, and I find myself much better supported than I expected—every thing is in good train, and there is no doubt of the success of the Republican Army."

From other sources it is understood Aradonda, heads the troops opposed to Gen. LONG.—Natchez Ind. Press.

The U. S. Branch Bank at Chillicothe has recently refused to pay a draft to the amount of about $10,000 in specie. The specie was, as we are informed, wanted by Gov. Cass, to fulfil a stipulation contained in some of the late Indian Treaties. Mr. Robert A. Forsyth, of this city was the bearer of the draft, and having learnt that the money would not be paid to him, he had the draft protested.

Detroit Gaz.

A new Velocipede has been invented by a young gentleman of New-York, said to be very elegant. "It runs upon three wheels, two behind and one before; but the feet of the rider do not touch the ground, as is the case with the other machine. It is propelled by the feet working two paddles, which are connected with the after wheels, and the exercise requisite to keep it in full motion is not more than driving a gig, or riding on horseback. On a tolerable road you can run with ease thirteen miles an hour. The inventor mentioned that by a trial on the Battery, he found he could go at the rate of 15 miles an hour, including turnings."

EMIGRANTS.

Mr. Niles gives it as his opinion that the Emigrations to the United States, are not less than four hundred persons a day, or 146,000 yearly.

The number of Settlers arrived at Quebec, from the opening of the river this season, to the 29th of July, is stated at Seven Thousand, nine hundred & thirty-nine, and the number of vessels, at three hundred and eighty.

PRESIDENCY OF THE U. S. BANK.

The re-election of Mr. CHEVES to this important station, seems to excite a lively solicitude among the friends of this institution. A gentlemen of his talents, firmness and integrity, is necessary, in the direction of its affairs, to render it really respectable and efficient, to sustain the hopes of its friends, and disappoint the wishes of its enemies.

Extracts of letters received from different parts of South Carolina, by a gentleman at Charleston.

If you have not sold my cotton, I wish you to retain it until it will demand 20 cents. As the rot has pretty generally attacked the cotton this season again, I impute its rising to that, and countermand my former order.

Another.—The hopes of our planters a few weeks ago were high as to their crops. The corn crop promises very fair, and we hope to see corn down to 50 cts. but several I have enquired of to day, state, that the rot is making sad work among the cotton, and has commenced its ravages very early, but that I suppose is owing to the crops being more forward than usual.

Another.—Our old adversary the rot, has commenced very severely on the cotton, and there is no calculating what injury we may sustain, as it is a month sooner, than it has ever yet appeared.

Mount Zion, (Hancock cy. Ga.) July 23.

Destructive Storm. Sabbath evening July 18th, about 6 o'clock, a cloud of uncommon blackness rose a few miles south of Eatonton. The wind was S. E. and blew with considerable violence. The flashes of lightning were repeated, & the thunder loud.—The storm pursued course to the N. W. up Little River.

In three quarters of an hour it became destructive. The flashes of lightning & the peals of thunder redoubled;—the wind blew to a tempest;—the roar of the angry elements was incessant; and considerable damage was done by the fall of hail. The stones are said to have been as large as a hen's egg; and the ground was in many places covered with them at 5 o'clock next morning. The breadth o' the storm was between one and two miles. On the skirts slight injury was sustained, but in the centre it has left the deep footsteps of desolation for many miles in length. The wind prostrated the standing crops, while the hail tore the blades from the corn, and the leaves from the cotton. On some plantations the fields of cotton especially, are said to be entirely ruined.

From the Georgetown Messenger.

It is with mingled feelings of pride and pleasure that I hand to you for publication the following little anecdote, communicated to me by one of our distinguished naval officers, just arrived from the Mediterranean.

When the Franklin 74 was lying off Naples, the Emperor and Empress of Austria, and the king of Naples, expressed a desire to visit the ship; and were accordingly received on an appointed day, with all the honors due to their exalted stations. A royal salute was fired, the yards manned, and the boat-swains piped their majesties on board of one of the finest ships in the world. Nothing was spared by her gallant commander to render the visit of his Imperial and Royal guests agreeable; and they expressed in the most undisguised manner the pleasure they felt at their reception, and their amazement at a scene which, to their Imperial Majesties especially, was so entirely novel.

An unfortunate accident, however, interrupted the pleasures of the day. The chamberlain of the Empress fell down the main hatchway and broke his leg, which, however, was immediately set on the spot, in the most skilful and satisfactory manner, by the surgeon of the ship, Dr. Salter. This unfortunate event of course caused a good deal of anxiety, and as soon as the chamberlain was placed in a litter, their majesties accompanied him on shore. The next day the Emperor sent Dr. Salter a purse containing one hundred doubloons, (fifteen hundred dollars) which however was promptly returned by that gentleman, with a note stating his reasons for so doing; which were simply, that "he was an American officer and had done nothing but his duty."

The astonishment of the Emperor at this unlooked for return, was excessive; but he could not but openly express his admiration of the independence of character displayed by the American surgeon. His courtiers, however, were thunderstruck—"To return the present of an Emperor. Santa Maria! and 100 doubloons too!"—And they held up their hands in admiration of an act which they felt they could not imitate.

It is by such acts as these, that we may expect our nationat character to be established abroad. A naval victory may make us feared—but this moral victory, if I may so term it, must make us respected and esteemed; and cannot fail to shed additional lustre on the rising glory of our navy. F.

July 20, JOHN THAW.

Harmony Seminary,

FOR YOUNG LADIES.

THE annual vacation of one month will expire and the Seminary will be re-opened on the first day of September.

No pains or expense have been spared to render this institution as desirable as any in the United States for the education of Young Ladies.—It will be under the care of the rev. A. D. Campbell, pastor of the church, who will occasionally, deliver lectures on Rhetoric and History. The various other branches of English Literature, will be confided to a gentleman, whom an experience of twenty years in some of the first schools in the United States, has amply qualified for the task. A young lady who studied under the best teachers in London, has lately arrived for the express purpose of giving instructions in Music and the French Language. The board, washing and hours of recreation are under the eye of a careful Matron; and it is the determination of those concerned in the School, that nothing shall be wanting that industry, talents and attention can accomplish, to improve the minds of the pupils, to render their deportment pleasing, and their dispositions amiable.

THE TERMS ARE,

For tuition in the English and French languages, Geography, History, Rhetoric, Composition, Drawing Maps, Writing, Arithmetic, and board and washing $150 per annum. For Music, an extra charge of $6 per quarter, and the stationary that the pupils require will be furnished at the lowest price.

Harmony is situated 25 miles North of Pittsburgh, on the road to Meadville and Erie. To persons unacquainted with the teachers every necessary information can be obtained by application to the Rev. Francis Herron, the Rev. Joseph Stockton, or to Mr. Bakewell, Pittsburgh.

N B. If required, Lectures on Botany will be delivered, by a proper person at a moderate charge.

Pittsburgh, August 20, 1819.

The editors of the Brownsville Register, the Washington Examiner, the Greensburgh Gazette and Steubenville Herald, will please insert the above three times, and forward their accounts to this office.

WITHOUT DEDUCTION.

To draw THREE times a week, and 1000 numbers each day. Prizes payable without deduction, Sixty days after the drawing is completed, at the Camden Bank.

25,000 Tickets at 10 Dols.

INTERNAL NAVIGATION, the object of the above scheme, must be allowed by all, to be of the highest importance to these United States and every good citizen must feel himself deeply interested on every intimation of undertakings, having Internal Improvement in view, being set on foot, and be desirous of aiding according to his abilities, towards the promotion thereof.

Under these impressions, the Commissioners in presenting the above Scheme to a generous public, feel a confidence of general and universal support and encouragement, but more particularly from their sister States, Pennsylvania, New-York, Delaware and Maryland; who, we may safely say, have never appealed in vain to their sister state of New-Jersey; but on the contrary, have been, and ever will be, generously supported by her, in the like and other improvements.

As to the Scheme, the commissioners have endeavoured to suit it to the circumstances of all The low price of tickets will preclude very few from an opportunity of securing an independence for life, or acquiring a very handsome remuneration for the trifle advanced.

The many rich prizes it contains, with the others, will all be paid without deduction at the Camden Bank, where the money received for the Tickets will be deposited immediately, for the sole use of the Lottery.

Although there are 25 Capital Stationary Prizes amounting to only $67,500, one for each drawing day, yet there remain afloat as many large and valuable prizes, amounting to the sum of $152,500, as are generally to be met with in a whole Scheme, and the whole payable without any deduction therefrom. And for the accommodation of the fortunate adventurers in this Lottery, who may wish to receive their money immediately, a provision will be made at the said Bank for the payment of the prizes the VERY DAY they are drawn, on allowing the customary discount, as in Philadelphia or New-York.

The Lottery will be drawn in Camden, opposite the city of Philadelphia, and the Manager flatters himself that such encouragement will be given by a generous public as will enable him in the course of a very few weeks, to announce in the papers of the several states, the day the drawing will commence.

Contractors will be allowed a liberal discount.
